One possible version:

Dear friends,

I am glad to stand here and give you a speech. Today, my topic is “The most important lesson for me”. Junior high school is the most valuable time in my growth. Not only did I gain much knowledge, but I also learned many important lessons like honesty and kindness. But the most valuable lesson I have learned is to never give up.

During a school sports meeting, I received the stick when our team was last in the running race. The rainy track was muddy, and my legs felt heavy. When I almost gave up, my teacher shouted, “Don’t let problems beat you. Keep going!” His words reminded me that success wasn’t just about speed, but continuous effort. I focused on each step and finished my part. Though we didn’t win, our classmates cheered for us.

This experience taught me that real success comes from not stopping. I will keep improving myself bit by bit and face any difficulty in high school and beyond.

Thank you for listening!
